

UC

A UC is a type of four-year university in California. All UC's have "UC" in their names. UC stands for University of California.

UC's are public universities, which means that they are run by the state of California and state tax money helps pay for them.

UC's have very good reputations. For many careers, graduating from a UC will help you get a job. But students need very good high school grades to earn acceptance to a UC.

Because a lot of science research happens at UC's, they are the best universities for students studying science and math.

Students can also earn doctoral degrees like MD, PhD, and JD degrees at UC's.